Women's Nutrition: A Valuable Message That No Woman Can Afford to Miss

Dr. Meschino will highlight the unique nutritional needs of women with respect to:

- The 10 steps to reduce risk of breast cancer and other reproductive cancers
- How to burn fat more efficiently and lose excess weight without dieting
- Slowing and reversing skin aging
- Solving post-meal bloating problems
- Preventing heart disease – the leading cause of death in women over 50
- Preventing and managing osteoporosis and osteopenia

In recent years we have learned that certain nutritional factors in foods and supplements can block key steps in the development of breast cancer, heart disease, and osteoporosis. Women also have different metabolic challenges than men with respect to weight management, the digestive process, skin aging, and the development of breast cancer and osteoporosis. As such, in addition to regular medical check ups, women need to be aware of the specific proactive strategies that have been shown to give them the best anti-aging, weight management, and disease prevention result.
